print is personal.

Personal styling for men who love print.

BRAND IDENTITY PROJECT · SUMEET TELGOTE · 2026

A college brief that never left me

“Dusky, because it is my skin tone. Prints, because I just can’t get over them.”

Dusky Prints began as my personal-branding project at Wilson College, University of Mumbai. This is the same idea, rebuilt as one clear identity.

The name already says everything

Dusky

A skin tone worn with pride. Every colour and photo is chosen to flatter warm, brown skin.

Prints

One shape, repeated. The logo is built the way a block print is built.

Personal

Styling for one man at a time. That becomes the line the whole brand repeats.

03 • WHO IT'S FOR

The man with one printed shirt he never wears

Need	Confidence to wear pattern to work, weddings and weekends.
Promise	Three ways to wear the print he already owns.
Voice	Warm, direct, a little cheeky. A friend with a good eye.

Warm skin, rich print, one loud piece

Five colours, each with one job

Three typefaces, three fixed roles

Bricolage Grotesque

The wordmark and every headline.

Work Sans

Body text, labels, captions, buttons.

Kalam

The tagline only. Nothing else is handwritten.

07 • THE MARK

One stem, two letters

d + p. Turn the d upside down and it becomes the p: one shape, repeated, exactly like a print.

Pinked edges. A swatch cut with tailor's pinking shears, the stylist's own tool.

Always chilli and chalk. The mark never changes colour, on any background.

One lockup, one line, two backgrounds

The rules

The mark is always chilli and chalk.

The wordmark always sits right of the mark, on two lines.

The tagline is always “print is personal.” in Kalam.

Under 80px wide, use the mark alone.

09 • THE PRINT

The mark, repeated, becomes the brand's own print

The same mark, unchanged, tiled on indigo. It lines garment bags, wraps parcels and sits behind the website.

Three prints, three rules

Big florals

Keep everything else plain. One loud piece per look.

Dark tropicals

Made for evenings. Pair with earth tones and leather.

Rich colour

Ground it with black. Let the shirt carry the colour.

11 • THE STYLIST'S VIEW

“Prints in fashion can never go wrong — and I’m here to prove that with my styling.”

The same signature on every page

Business card and letterhead

The card front is the cover in miniature: the lockup with the tagline beneath it. The letterhead uses the light version of the same signature.
